Jura Stallions Prove Good Farm Workers

While the Swiss Jura horse, long recognized as the national breed in that country, has not been generally recognized in America, interest has been centered in the breed in recent years because of the fact that the stallions are suitable for all types of farm work.

The breed has shown proper temperament, strength and resistance to disease, and while light in weight has proven an excellent draft horse. It is exceptionally strong, tame and docile.

"Lettuce Box" Furnishes Money Students With Spending Money

COLUMBUS.—"The Lettuce Box" sprouts the long green for hard-pressed Ohio State University students.

In the entrance of Hennick's restaurant, across from the campus gates, hangs a glass paneled frame marked "The Lettuce Box." In it are perhaps a dozen five-dollar bills, each suspended by a metal clip.

When a student finds himself temporarily "embarrassed," he informs the restaurant cashier.

After identifying himself as an OSU student in good standing, he fills out a card—name on one side, date he'll return the five-spot on the other. And with that he becomes solvent again.

A bill is taken from the case and in its place goes the card, date side out. After a maximum of five days the student returns the money and the card goes back to the files.

Should he fail to make payment as due, the card is reversed so his name is "posted" as delinquent in the case.

The plan has been in operation for several months, and to date we've had no trouble with anyone defaulting on payment," says W. T. Parker, the restaurant owner and proprietor, who developed the idea.

Argentine Horse Breeders Test Steeds for Endurance

BUENOS AIRES.—Argentine army and horse breeders are completing arrangements for a 1,200-mile endurance test to determine the best type of saddle horse for the range rider and the soldier.

A contest is being organized on entirely new lines and will be open to all breeds.

It will be distinct from the bygone 24-hour race, which saw many of the animals die during the grueling test, and the 1,000-mile race between criollos and range bred descendants of thoroughbreds.

The last race of the latter type was abandoned when one of the competing animals met with an accident.

Under the new rules, all competitors are subject to identical conditions. Ten geldings of each competing breed are to be ridden simultaneously over a route selected by Argentine army officers.

Each animal will carry 250 pounds. All will be fed and treated alike throughout the test, and all must be exercised and fed alike for one month prior to the event.

Uncle Sam Says

You hoveled your head off when a horse won a race, but on shoulder, let a perfect pitch when into the catcher's mitt for the third strike. Well, you've got the same right to boost if you saw the man who works next to you miss the ball on this tax reduction business. By taking the extra money and getting it into the United States savings bonds through the payroll savings plan he actually would be hitting a home run for security for self and country.

Your country needs millions of savers now to preserve the nation's security. America's security is your security.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

It's Leap Year, Girls!

First girl in our town to "get her man" on Leap Year was the Cupper's daughter, Jane, who wed Bill Webster's boy last Saturday.

When I asked Bill Jr. if it was true that Jane really did the proposing, Bill said: No, but she made it plain she'd make an ideal wife. Instead of looking for diversion or excitement every evening, she was content to chat beside the fire.

"I could plainly see," says Bill, "that we'd really have a happy home life—which is just exactly what I want from marriage."

I know it's usual for older folks to shake their heads over the young generation. (It's gone on for hundreds of years, now.)

But from where I sit, young people of marrying are today every bit as commendable as the older were—in their temperance, and common sense. So Jane and Bill—the best of both worlds.
